GENEVA—AND AFTER

The conference at Geneva has collapsed. No agreement was reached on anything, except that it was time to stop trying to reconcile the irreconcilable, and go home.

Why? The reason is that, on which there is no more chance that public opinion in the three countries can agree than that their representatives could work out a cruiser ratio that would be mutually satisfactory.

Touching that question, it is to be noted that the sale of ships of the type of Great Britain and the United States will assist in the solutions of jingo newspapers and political demagogues. For it is one question of which the issue is that is said—and the more temperately it is said—the better.

There is practically nothing that these two peoples have ever agreed to do together in each other. But there is grave possibility that an energetic campaign of flag-waving, financed by interests which stand to make money out of the game, should stampede the two Governments into a competition in naval armament, the financial result of which would be most oppressive to the taxpayer than those of the war.

What follows Geneva? That is the question which the sober-minded people of Great Britain and the United States should ask themselves, and to which they should give a prompt and plain response from their statements.

If the leaders of public thought in the two countries have nothing at all in mind as an alternative to the proposed cruiser agreement, then it would have been a thousand times better that the conference had never been held. For nothing can come from it but heat and animosity, and those who have done more than anything in the last two decades to destroy the mutual confidence upon which the friendship of these two countries is based.

A treatise on the history of the three countries which participated in the Geneva conference is the logical alternative to the cruiser arrangement which was tried but could not be made. And that is the one means through which the people of Britain and the United States at least—can—secure that the world's opinion of the two countries of ship-builders and armament-makers, and the rest of the breed of dollar-pushing who bathe upon the credibility of a nation that is obsessed by the notion that it needs unlimited armament.

Unless the taxpayers of the United States and Great Britain are willing to be the first to fall in line with the others, they must protest themselves against each other, they had better take a hand in this business of international politics themselves, and make plain to their governing leaders that they want that measure killed by the conclusion of a treaty which will bind them to do it, and keep the peace with each other for all time. And a man can also be brought into the deal, so much the better.

THE JASPER HIGHWAY

Hon. Frank McPherson has given out some information relating to the construction of the Jasper highway which should interest those who object to the attention of the members of the Legislature and the public.

Work on the highway this summer is being started on the section between Edmonton and Jasper, and the section between Jasper and Caron Creek, in addition to the completion of the steel bridge over the Maligne river. This grading, it is said, will give a fairly good road from Edmonton for all Edison.

Further construction work is barred partly because a man has been condemned to have an extensive road work done in the province, and the market road has to be given preference over the automobile highway in the matter of expenditure.

The question arises whether it would not be well to treat the Jasper trail as a project standing by itself, with the road to the east, and the maintenance of specific undertakings to accomplish a definite purpose—the opening of the park to motor tourists.

Unless that is done, it is probable that the work will drag along for years, the rate of progress being determined by the amount of money which can be spared from the ordinary road funds, and a very reason that the highway is not completed is a reason for so as motor traffic to the park is concerned.

It is estimated that a million dollars would be required to build the highway through to the park. That money will be forthcoming, and the market road has to be given preference over the automobile highway in the matter of expenditure.

The question arises whether it would not be well to treat the Jasper trail as a project standing by itself, with the road to the east, and the maintenance of specific undertakings to accomplish a definite purpose—the opening of the park to motor tourists.

Unless that is done, it is probable that the work will drag along for years, the rate of progress being determined by the amount of money which can be spared from the ordinary road funds, and a very reason that the highway is not completed is a reason for so as motor traffic to the park is concerned.

Alberta car-owners are turning in to the provincial treasury this year about a million and a half dollars for license. They will contribute an other half million through the tax on gasoline. They will pay as much, or more, next year for the privilege of driving in the park.

Why not at the next session of the Legislature definitely earmark a million dollars of the year's revenue from license and gasoline taxes to complete the Jasper highway, and get the job done next summer?

Nothing is more certain than that thousands of motor tourists will make the trip to the park every summer once they are given a road to travel on, and will scatter expense money in every centre through which they may come and go.

As the market road is watered and graded, so to speak, why not continue to hold the highway at the construction of the highway, when half the revenue drawn from the Alberta motor car in a year would build the road and open the park to the residents of Alberta and the tourist from outside?

The notion that Alberta should not build the highway to the park until British Columbia gets ready to build from the park to the coast is an argument, "détour". The highway from Calgary to the coast would not be built yet had that been postponed until British Columbia was prepared to build from Banff to Vancouver.

Choice

By EDGAR A. GUST

This is the choice every boy must make: which of two roads does he want to take, which of two types does he wish to be? Let's look at the two roads and see what they are. The road and the type are his own to say. But he mustn't be long on the say.

Respect is won by the uphill road. The boy who takes it will be held in high esteem. And the pleasures are few and the tasks are stern. And the journey is slow for there much to learn; but the boy will be a man when he reaches the end. He will have neighbors and friends and a name some day.

Now to the lower choice: that words a curse. And he'd rather bring from a rock man's purse. And he sometimes steals and he sometimes steals. And the road is easy, but the boy is not. But he winds up sooner or later in shame. Without neighbors or friends or a goodly name.

Now, look at us all as we pass along. Most of us are on the uphill road, the hard one. Most of us working from day to day. Giving our best for our rate of pay; giving our best for our rate of pay. That made up my mind which you want to be.

Crime

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Justice William Herman Black brought out some good points on the "mater of crime the other day in a speech made before the Royal Canadian Legion in Chicago. After years of practical experience on the bench, after thoroughly investigating the subject, he mentioned the following items:

Crime is a business, and as much a calling as being a merchant, a doctor, or a lawyer. A young man gets into a business, and it is a good business, and it is a gambling proposition. The odds are against him.

Law enforcement and police ought to be experts in practical criminology. Their business is not merely apprehending and punishing, but to prevent society.

Justice Black said that if Judges could be required to examine the prisoner before the lawyers got hold of him, he would be more inclined to complain.

The rule that a man can be convicted only on the unanimous consent of twelve of his peers, is not fair, he said.

A conviction ought to rest upon a two-thirds vote.

One should be allowed to be a man in a courtroom before an appropriate audience.

In many criminal cases in Alberta, the man on trial becomes ill or dies.
